

Mammal Gallery

A massive collection of bones and fossils of various animals found across South Asia can be found on display in this gallery, which has been planned and arranged to illustrate the Zoology of the subcontinent. The gallery also boasts a vast collection of unique stuffed mammals from all around the globe. The highlight is the skeleton of a common minke whale that was found stranded at the Myanmar coast in 1804; followed by the lower jaw of a Blue Whale and a skeleton of an Indian elephant, which was a gift to King George V during his arrival in Mumbai by the Maharaja of Varanasi.

The Mammal Gallery at the Indian Museum in Kolkata is one of the museum's prominent exhibits, showcasing a diverse range of mammalian specimens. Here's a detailed overview:

Mammal Gallery Overview:

1. Exhibit Focus:

- The Mammal Gallery features a comprehensive collection of mammalian species, highlighting their diversity, anatomy, and evolutionary significance.

2. Specimens Displayed:

- The gallery displays a variety of preserved specimens, including both common and rare mammals from different habitats around the world. You can find specimens of large mammals like elephants and tigers, as well as smaller mammals like bats and rodents.

3. Educational Content:

- The gallery includes informative displays about the characteristics of different mammal species, their habitats, and their role in the ecosystem. This often includes diagrams, taxonomic classifications, and information about the conservation status of various species.

4. Interactive Elements:

- There might be interactive exhibits or multimedia presentations that provide additional information about mammalian biology, behavior, and conservation efforts.

5. Historical Significance:

- The Indian Museum, established in 1814, is one of the oldest museums in India, and its Mammal Gallery reflects the museum's long history of scientific research and preservation.

6. Location:

- The Indian Museum is located at 27 Jawaharlal Nehru Road, Kolkata, West Bengal, India. The Mammal Gallery is situated within the museum's natural history section.

7.Visiting Information:

- The museum typically has regular visiting hours and offers guided tours or educational programs. It's a good idea to check their official website or contact the museum for the most current information regarding visiting hours, ticket prices, and any special exhibitions.

If you need more specific details or have particular questions about the gallery, let me know!

-----XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX-----